

Off to new pastures!

NEW LOOK

The S5 24-hour chair with new highlights.

Page 4

EXPERIENCE A CONTROL STATION FIRST-HAND

The Stadler Systec showroom relies on the quality of Svenstol[®].

Page 6

Svenstol® sets sail

New 24-hour chairs for the Maritime Safety and Security Centre

The North Sea and Baltic Sea is one of the busiest stretches of water in the world. To ensure that ships are able to reach their destinations safely, undamaged and on time, various safety and security authorities need to work together. Recently, they have begun doing so under one roof – at the Maritime Safety and Security Centre in Cuxhaven. On 24-hour chairs from StolComfort.

Opened in February 2017 by German Transport Minister Dobrindt in an official ceremony, the Maritime Safety and Security Centre (MSSC) is the only one of its kind in the world. Never before has there been a centre which sees all the organisations responsible for safety and security at sea working together. The modern building now houses more than 100 members of staff from the Federal Police, Customs, the Waterways and Shipping Administration, the German Navy, the Harbour Police and the Central Command for Maritime Emergencies (CCME). Their common goal is to provide safety and protection in one of the busiest marine areas in the world – the North and Baltic Seas. At the heart of the MSSC is the Joint Sea Emergency Operations Centre. The 225 m² space houses 13 members of staff around the clock, monitoring the North and Baltic Seas. In the event of an emergency or marine accident, this is where the different strands of the rescue operation come together. To ensure that staff are able to remain focused on their work at all times, StolComfort has equipped the MSSC with 24-hour chairs. The authorities in the Maritime Safety and Security Centre all have different responsibilities: The Federal Police monitor the maritime borders of the North and Baltic Seas to prevent unlawful entry, for example. They are also responsible for monitoring shipping traffic and investigate violations of environmental regulations, for example. The responsibilities of the Harbour Police include ensuring compliance with shipping safety regulations and investigating naval accidents. In the event of a serious accident, CCME coordinates the operation, acting as an intermediary between the federal government and Germany's coastal states. The MSSC also houses the Point of Contact (PoC), which acts as a central information hub for navigation and security agencies in the event of any threats or terror risks. Ships flying under the German flag can send a so-called 'silent alarm' to the PoC from anywhere in the world if their safety or security is threatened – for example to signify a pirate attack. When the PoC receives the signal, the necessary emergency measures are set in motion and safety is restored once more on the seas.

We are delighted that the staff of the MSSC are supported in their important work by our comfortable and sturdy Svenstol® S5 24-hour seat.

For more information on the MSSC, visit www.msz-cuxhaven.de

The S5 facelift – more is always good!

At Stolcomfort, even a 100-per-cent 24-hour chair is constantly being optimised. The new highlights make the Svenstol® even better suited for frequent changes between Users, long shifts and relaxed, focused work.

Easier weight adjustment

The size, stature and weight of different users of a 24-hour chair vary greatly. With the new weight adjustment feature, you can now adjust the activePlus mechanism to your weight much more quickly in the hectic everyday environment of a control station. This helps prevent tension and keeps you focused for longer.

Increased tilt angle

Ergonomists recommend regularly switching between an active and relaxed posture whilst working. That's why the Svenstol® S5 is designed for a combination of relaxed and active sitting. It helps you stay focused at work and the integrated handle makes it quick to change to the relaxed position. This makes your short breaks more effective and relieves the strain on your spinal discs as well. The new Svenstol® backrest setting extends the tilt angle from 38 to 44 degrees – making a brief spell sitting in the reclined position even more relaxing.

Visit us at the A+A and experience the new Svenstol®.

More comfortable headrest

Another highlight of the Svenstol® is the comfort headrest. It can be adjusted in three dimensions, enabling it to support your head in any sitting position. The ergonomically optimised surface of the headrest provides additional comfort and gives you the feeling of sitting not just on the chair – but in it. The new, sleeker design completes the Svenstol® facelift.

Climatex – an innovative upholstery fabric

The upholstery on a 24-hour chair has a decisive influence on the well-being of the user and the longevity of the chair. Our new upholstery fabric combines comfort, longevity and sustainability – all with a whole new level of quality. It cools down and warms up according to the needs of the user, creating a pleasant seat temperature. Moisture is quickly absorbed thanks to the special structure of the weave, keeping the surface of the seat dry. The innovative combination of natural and artificial fibres also makes it extremely hard-wearing – ideal for continuous round-the-clock use.

Typically Swedish!

Neighbours, pop stars and tasty delicacies

Nordic neighbours

Sweden and Norway are known to be friendly neighbours. It's hard to imagine, but that hasn't always been the case. It was only in 1905, after the end of a war, that Norway won full independence from Sweden. Since then, the two countries have been united by a kind of love-hate relationship. Norwegians regard the Swedes as the schoolmasters of Scandinavia – always polite, but also very boring. To the Swedes on the other hand, their neighbours are smooth operators and best not to be relied on. In recent decades, however, the relationship has become very positive. Many Swedes work in Norway and travelling across the border is part of everyday life. Even so, the jokes about Norway being a little backward haven't disappeared completely: 'The pilot just before landing says "We will shortly be landing in Oslo. Please put your watches back 30 years."'

Jante and pop music

The Jantelag – or the law of Jante – has always been around in Sweden, and it shapes society. Essentially, it means: Standing out forbidden. Or: Just don't think you're anything special. As a result, both in private and professional life, people keep their own opinions to themselves and avoid conflict. Show-offs are frowned upon in Sweden even more so than elsewhere, and luxury brands like Ferrari are therefore controversial. Swedes are often uncomfortable with compliments and professional qualifications such as a doctorate are rarely named on business cards. Despite their reserve, Sweden has been home to some of the most internationally successful pop music beside the US and the UK. Since ABBA conquered the global charts in the 70s, successful new bands, singers and producers are constantly being born in the small Nordic nation. You won't see them putting on airs and grace or connected with scandals, though. Thank Jante.

Swedish specialities

Everyone's heard of cinnamon swirls and Swedish 'Köttbullar' meatballs – or at least anyone who's been shopping in IKEA. Yet Swedish cuisine has much more interesting culinary delicacies to offer. Blood pudding is a classic – a Christmas dish made from pig's blood mixed with grains and sweet spices. Another Swedish speciality are the endless flavours of crispbread, soured milk called Filmjöl, the bread-and-butter cake known as Smorgastarta, and cheese in tubes – in more than 50 different flavors. Swedes don't just like hearty food, though – with consumption of sweets at 18 kg per capita, they have the biggest sweet tooth in the world.

Self-service bars with wine gum dummies, foam sweets, raspberry liquorice and other sweets can be found everywhere you go. Swedes also like to combine hearty food with sweet food, eating cranberry sauce with meatballs, game, poultry, fish or potatoes.

Everything at a glance!
The new 360° control station showroom at Stadler Systec with Svenstol®

Along with Svenstol® at the A+A 2017

See, touch and experience – this is the motto of the new control station showroom from the company Stadler Systec, which specialises in innovative 360° solutions for control stations, control rooms and situation rooms. And Stolcomfort chairs are an essential part of the equipment, of course. Companies that operate a control station can experience and test the control station technology and furnishings of the future here first-hand. From state-of-the-art big-screen technology to biodynamic lighting – visitors can get a full insight into the control stations of the future. One special highlight is the virtual room inspection.

We are delighted that our Svenstol® S5 24-hour chair is adding to the relaxed atmosphere in this ultimate experience of control stations.

For more information, go to www.stadler-systec.com

Free 4-week trial
Sit, test, enjoy!

Struggling to imagine exactly how it feels to sit in a Svenstol® chair? Then test our dynamic 24-hour chair for yourself – free of charge for 4 weeks! As soon as you sit down, you'll feel the difference. You might not want to give your Svenstol® back at all ...

Request a test chair by contacting us at:

info@stolcomfort.com

or by phone:

+49 (0) 5261-28897-0

Don't miss it!

Svenstol® with new highlights at the A+A.

October 17-20, 2017
Düsseldorf, Germany

Safety, Security and Health at Work
International Trade Fair with Congress
www.AplusA-online.com

The A+A will run from 17 to 20 October 2017. It is the biggest international occupational health and safety trade fair. We will be there at our exhibition stall!

Discover our new highlights and use the opportunity to try out the Svenstol® chair in a relaxed environment. Experience comfortable and active sitting for yourself in our 100% 24-hour chair.

Have you got questions about healthy sitting and our range of products? We will be happy to give you tailored advice at our exhibition stall.

Join us in Hall 10, Stall F21.

We look forward to seeing you!

'Sit well around the clock with chairs by Svenstol®!'

Your free gift

Visit us at the trade fair and get your own T-shirt!

Cut out the voucher and get a T-Shirt on our stand at the A+A.

We look forward to seeing you!

Hall 10, Stall F21

